Home Marketing Affiliate Marketing Guides eCommerce Marketing News and Events Sep 14, 2020 15 min to read Affiliate coupons have been around since the beginning of affiliate marketing. The ways of working with them, however, have changed over time. Let's explore how affiliate coupons can have a significant strategic impact on an advertiser's affiliate program and address common misconceptions about them. The Basics of Vouchers in Affiliate Marketing Vouchers have been around since the beginning of affiliate marketing. The ways of working with them, however, have changed over time. With the proliferation of online retailers and the increasingly frequent shift from physical stores to eCommerce stores (1), customers are becoming more and more experienced when it comes to buying products at discount prices. In addition, increased competition requires online retailers to constantly gear their marketing strategies to compete in the e-commerce space. With most online retailers now offering digital discount codes, advertisers should consider using marketing coupons to attract new customers, retain their existing customers, and ultimately build brand loyalty. What is Coupon Marketing? For advertisers and brands looking to increase sales, increase customer loyalty and attract repeat customers, coupon marketing has been a proven and true marketing strategy for over a century. Asa Candler, the founder of Coca-Cola, was the first retailer to create a coupon campaign, turning Coca-Cola from an insignificant tonic into a dominant drink (2). Since then, coupon campaigns have become increasingly popular by exploiting consumers' desire to save money by offering products and services at discounted rates. Regardless of the type of business, advertisers can leverage coupon marketing strategies for further brand success. Coupon marketing is one of the most effective marketing tools advertisers can adopt: statistics show that 77% of shoppers spend $10-50 more than expected to redeem coupons, and 59% of consumers say that of all the deals an advertiser can offer, digital coupons are the most influential when you're looking for them. to influence their purchasing habits (3). How to Design and Implement a Successful Coupon Marketing Strategy Before an advertiser starts any marketing activity, they should first assess the current climate in their industry to predict how the proposed strategy will land. By conducting extensive market research, they need TOA to be able to determine the following information: What their competitors are doing to reward customers. What is it in the rival customer journey and where could improvements be made? The ideal expiration date for coupons sent to consumers within their industry. The ideal value of the discount code their buyers will receive. Which affiliate partners are promoting relevant competitors Create coupons to suit the Season Once advertisers have segmented theirs and decided which group will be targeted for which campaign coupons, brands should then create a schedule schedule with coupons for various dates throughout the year. This can be as simple as promotional codes for Christmas shopping or as promotional codes celebrating landmarks in corporate history. Track conversion rates Trace conversion rates of a coupon campaign is essential for any company that wants to understand the needs of its customers. Promo Codes allow businesses to monitor the results of coupon campaigns and optimize customer offerings in motion. [Online Coupon Marketing: Any company, regardless of size or industry, would be negligent if it does not seek any marketing strategy they intend to employ. Advertisers looking to use coupon marketing should consider the following: While 97% of retailers declare that offering discounts to customers is their primary pricing strategy \(4\), experts noted that, if used incorrectly, it may have the negative effects of devaluation of the brand in the eyes of the consumer \(5\). However, when the best practices are followed, coupon marketing can effectively strengthen brand reputation. Especially when it comes to regular customers, the use of coupons must be used strategically rather than always-on, taking into account also the margins of profit and discount only when it makes sense to the business. Including pop-up deals in the checkout area of their website, many companies have discovered that customers become distracted, leading to a much higher drop-off rate. Consider where perhaps a more appropriate place to include such offers for maximum ROI. How to run a Successful Strategy Coupon Affiliate Now that we have covered the basics of the introduction on the coupon market we try to explore how coupon affiliates can have a significant strategic impact on the affiliate program of an advertiser and face the common misconceptions about them. \[Where are the coupon affiliates located in the Conversion Funnel?\]\(#\) \[For a strong affiliate program, advertisers should work with a diverse portfolio of affiliates. Advertisers can collect more information about its merits in The importance of diversification for your affiliate program. A diversified program works with branches from each section of the conversion imbute. Coupon affiliates are naturally located at the bottom of the stock, as consumers visiting these places are ready to make their purchase. While it can be argued that working with coupon affiliates teaches consumers to wait for discounts, there are strategic ways for advertisers to contrastscommon wrong ideas about coupon affiliates\]\(#\) \[Below is a list of frequently asked questions from advertisers, with their associated responses:\]\(#\) \[Q: I'm worried I'll train the clients to wait for a discount. Will this be the case if I start working with coupon sites?\]\(#\) \[A: You do not need to have coupon codes all year round. If the change of customer behavior is a source of concern, we recommend creating codes at different times of the year without clear patterns, so consumers won't be able to discern when the next discount will be on offer.\]\(#\) \[Will coupon sites be able to help with this?\]\(#\) \[A: Consumers tend to break their shopping patterns to get the best price for a product. A coupon can help attract new customers \\(6\\). Most coupon sites have large databases and social media followers that can be used to reach new audiences. Some of our affiliates are driving over 60% of new customer orders to specific advertisers on the network.\]\(#\) \[Q: Will coupon affiliates cannibalize sales I would have received anyway?\]\(#\) \[A: 76% of customers abandon the shopping cart. The most common reason is that the additional cost for shipping is too high \\(7\\). If these customers find the cheapest product with a competitor offering a free shipping coupon code, that customer can be lost to the competition.\]\(#\) \[Q: Will coupon affiliates take sales off other affiliates on my program?\]\(#\) \[In particular, content sites? It is: Commission Factory keeps track of the in-program attribution, which can be used to keep an eye on this. We would suggest working with some selected coupon sites for a period of three months and then analyzing the results.\]\(#\) \[Q: We cannot afford to pay the commission rate as well as give a discount. Will this affect my margins?\]\(#\) \[A: The commission is paid on the discounted price. If margins are a concern, we recommend setting a coupon code with minimum charges or product/category exclusions. Alternatively, a customized commission rate can be discussed with coupon affiliates.\]\(#\) \[Q: Do coupon sites add value to my affiliate program?\]\(#\) \[A: Coupon users are typically wealthy, young and educated "a target group you might want to develop a relationship with in the early stages. Working with coupon sites is an effective way to increase the average order value \\(AOV\\) of your affiliate program by setting coupons with a maximum spend higher than the current AOV program. Coupon sites can also help you clear old inventory.\]\(#\) \[Q: We are very aware of the brand and do not want to be seen as a cheap brand. Will working with coupon sites damage the brand image?\]\(#\) \[A: Working with coupon sites does not mean offering coupon codes all year round. Coupon codes should be created for a specific purpose, such as getting rid of old inventory or last season stocks. In addition, a lot of coupon sites offer piece content rather than just listing codes or promotions. Coupon sites spend a lot of time improving their SEO ranking. Being described in one of their parts can satisfy the extra traffic to your site.\]\(#\) \[This ensures that a code can only be used once, even if it goes viral. It is recommended to provide the affiliate the affiliate a number of unique codes that you feel comfortable with. Deep Immersion into Different Coupon Affiliate Strategies Before evaluating different strategies, advertisers should verify that coupon data is transmitted to the Commission factory via the tracking pixel. This allows a better understanding of the impact of the coupon strategy and allows our click-free code function, which we will see in more detail below. We recommend aligning your overall business goals with the coupon strategy for the best impact.\]\(#\) \[1. Selecting Affiliate Coupons to Work Nearly With For an effective coupon strategy, you don't need to work with every affiliate coupon in the market. For a controlled and strategic approach, advertisers are advised to work with selecting affiliate coupons and have close and regular contact with them.\]\(#\) \[2. Offering exclusive codes for affiliates Offering an exclusive code for coupon sites can lead to additional promotional opportunities. Often, the affiliate will be able to provide the most visible newsletter rankings and/or exposure on their website if an exclusive code is offered. While it is recommended to run an exclusive code, which offers the best discount on the market at that time, this is not always possible. Sometimes a vanity code will suffice \\(an agreement running across all channels, which characterizes the name of the affiliate\\). Effectively this creates the illusion of exclusivity to the customer without offering a higher discount.\]\(#\) \[3. Affiliate coupon sites and paid search campaigns Most affiliate coupons offer to run paid search campaigns for advertisers in combination with an exclusive coupon code. There is no fixed fee required for this. However, whether an affiliate can offer this type of promotion to an advertiser depends on profitability, as the affiliate must cover the pay-per-click costs. If an advertiser is trying to get rid of old inventory, it is advisable to consult the top-performing coupon site about running a paid search campaign next to the coupon code. An attractive offer that is strategically aligned with other campaigns can significantly increase performance. The coupon site offers on an advertiser's brand + coupon or brand + coupon code terms for the duration of the exclusive code. The affiliate can effectively push competitors' ads and improve their ranking on search engines.\]\(#\) \[4. Incorporating Affiliate Content and Coupon Sites Most coupon sites write content in addition to their offer/coupons section. When an advertiser is not running an offer, it is recommended to use the content offer to stay front-of-mind with the affiliate's user base. Some coupon sites work as labels coupons for major content publications. While this is a coupon/promotion strategy rather than a content strategy, it still means being present and reaching the site visitors of those content posts.\]\(#\) \[5. Working with Non-Coupon Affiliates Having a coupon strategy does not necessarily mean working with coupon coupons Developing relationships with the best affiliate/influencer content and offering them exclusive codes can achieve great results. Commission Factory's clickless code technology allows sales assignments to affiliates even if no click is recorded. Instead of a click, the code itself becomes the identifier for the affiliate sale. This expands the ways to work with affiliates, such as having Instagram influencers promote an exclusive code in their Instagram stories.\]\(#\) \[Summary Working strategically with coupon sites can add value to an advertiser's program, and there are several ways to work with this type of affiliate. It's essential to have an open dialogue and align the strategy with the overall business objectives to have the desired impact.\]\(#\) \[Become an Affiliate Become an Advertiser References Related Articles: Did you enjoy reading this article?
